From "Augusta Treverorum", a Roman city on the Moselle, grew the modern university town of Trier with around 115,000 inhabitants. Roman monuments and UNESCO World Heritage sites like the Porta Nigra, the amphitheater, the Barbara- and Kaisertherme, the Konstantinbasilika and the Roman bridge adorn the cityscape. Trier is - as the oldest city in Germany - a historically and culturally shaped, very lively city in the heart of Europe on the border with France, Belgium and Luxembourg. The city and the Greater Region offer excellent education, shopping and leisure opportunities for young and old.
